and throwing it on the adjacent sand, whereby it is likely that a proportion of it finds its way back to the cutting. The water has a faint sulphuretted hydrogen smell when first brought up, but which it soon loses; it is also slightly milky in colour, but this may be due to the operations of the workmen. Its distance from Sydney, and the great elevation of the intermediate hills, render it a less likely site for the quantity it yields than some others, in addition to the pollution it receives. Alderman JOHN YOUNG moved the following resolution:—"That a supply of water be obtained from Vesta Swamp to augment the supply at Botany, at a cost not exceeding $10,000."

Alderman CHAPMAN seconded the motion.

After a some discussion, during which it was contended that no danger could arise from the Chinamen's gardens, the resolution was carried.

Alderman JOHN YOUNG also moved,—"That application be made to the Government for the necessary

ALDRMAN CHAPMAN seconded the resolution, and after a lengthy discussion it was carried.

The Council then adjourned.

MESSRS. ELLIOTT BROTHERS NEW WAREHOUSE.

The new warehouse which has been in course of construction for some considerable time past for Messrs. Elliot & Fry, has been lately completed, and is now ready for occupation. The building covers a large area between O'Connell and Sleigh streets, and has an extensive frontage for the work to be done. It was commenced in April, 1884, at a cost of nearly £24,000, and has been carried out in a satisfactory manner. The structure possesses every convenience for the purpose of carrying out the business of the firm, and the arrangements throughout for the purpose of carrying out the business of the firm are of the most complete kind. The accommodation to both streets is as follows:—The portion of the building which is situated on the north side of O'Connell street, is a two-story building, the upper floor of which will be the laboratory, and the lower floor, being formed of concrete, there is an approach from the roof to the roof, where there is a large flat forming a yard for the purpose of drying the goods. The floor is of very heavy and strong material, and has been designed to carry an immense weight. The basements have been well studied, and are properly drained, and are covered with concrete with asphaltum. This has been done in order to prevent the goods from any possibility of dampness. The goods will be watched from and received into the different floors by means of hydraulic lifts with the latest improvements. The height from the floor of the basement to the apex of the roof is 33 feet. The total area of floor space is 16,168 feet. Paving from either of the Big-ten floors through a staircase covered by w.v. which w.v. also be used for the staircase.

goods, you enter the larver block facing O'Connell-street. This has seven floors a, including basement, and possesses a total area of floor space of 46,492 feet, and a total height from floor of basement to apex of roof 101 feet, each floor being well lighted and ventilated, there being a spacious well running through each floor, and lighted by a large lantern. The great depth and height of the floors make them very imposing. The front portion of the ground floor will be used as the private offices of the firm and also for serving customers. This part will be beautifully tiled and surrounded with hand some office fittings. There will be a large lobby for customers, which will be a very attractive feature.

The derrick department will be reached by ascending from this part of the ground floor by a magnificent staircase. The department will be enclosed with handsome railings. The goods will be delivered and received by the passenger lift, which is the largest of the type, and the passenger lift will be hand-cum-mechanical, and will be placed in the south-west corner. The ground floor of this block is very spacious, well lighted, and the floor is to be treated in the same manner as the above mentioned. There will be a large subway for the basement for the convenience of the engine to work the hydraulic lift. A spacious and well-lighted room is to be reserved for the fire alarm, and the fire alarm is to be in the basement, being well thought out. There is a fire when looking up from the court—which is very roomy of the great height of the buildings. The approach to and from the courtyard has been well arranged, as the ways can enter Blith-street and pass out by O'Connell-street, thereby saving much inconvenience and crush. The internal arrangements and accommodations are perfect, and will be convenient for the purposes of the business which is to be carried on. The exterior have in no way been sacrificed. The bold and imposing front of the High-arc elevation, though not so high as that in O'Connell street, has been well treated in point of design. The front has been well broken and divided into five bays, with massive and well designed pilasters, moulded caps, and bases. The ground floor pilasters are carried to first string, and are rusticated; the next to two floors. The pilasters are continued through, thereby breaking strings and dividing the floors. The three central bays are lighted by large segmental and square-headed windows. They are divided into coupled windows, one large arch enclosing same. The whole of the front is surmounted by a bold and well executed balustrade.

temperature and plain sediment marking the central position. The O'Connell street elevation will have a handsome front. The treatment and design are beautifully broken, producing an imposing effect, with a play of light and shade. The ground floor is composed of four rusticated piers, with enriched caps and moulded bases, with outer piers forming corbels to stop the moulded panel strings. The whole front is divided, like the High-street one, into five bays. The first and second floors, through which the Charybdis ground piers pass, without touching the moulded bases. The third and fourth floors, through which run a form of double pilasters, blocked in centre with panel block, with enriched caps and moulded bases. The last or upper floor, is divided by small double piers, with enriched foisted caps and moulded bases. The floors are divided by well designed, and moulded strings broken over each pier, producing a play of light and shade in front. The whole is surmounted with a boldly treated cornice, moulded string, and the corners are marked with a sediment. Both floors will form and a worthy addition to the architecture of the city, and reflects much credit upon the architects, Messrs. Howe and Green, of Vickers's-chambers. The contracts for the different parts have been carried out most creditably. The masonry and brickwork portion has been carried out by Messrs. Robert Sims and J. Devitt; the carpentry and joiners' work by Mr. James White; the plastering work by Messrs. Lewis and Nunn. The duty of clerk of works has been well performed by Mr. Joseph Curdick. The

The ceremony in connection with laying the last stone of the building was performed at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon by Mr. E. W. Fildes (senior partner of the firm), in the presence of a large number of gentlemen. Mr. Ross, on behalf of the contractors, presented Mr. Fildes with a handsome silver trowel, which bore a suitable inscription. The stone was laid upon the top of the central pedestal in the basement of the building, and the ceremony was completed by the singing of the national anthem.

Mr. LOUIS PHILLIPS proposed the health and prosperity of the firm. He said the firm of Messrs. Elliott Brothers had been carrying on business under its present name for a period of 25 years, during which time he had been associated with the business system of commerce. He could and upright firm did not exist at the present day in the city of Sydney. (Applause.) The progress of a city like Sydney was owing in a large degree to the enterprise of firms like that which the Messrs. Elliott Brothers represented. He was sure they would all most heartily join with him in drinking to the health of the members of the firm, and in wishing them every prosperity in the future.

The town was honoured in a very enthusiastic manner, after which, Mr. PROSER rose and congratulated the firm upon the success which had crowned their efforts in the past. Although a rival tradesman, he considered that there was room for all of them in New South Wales, and he could heartily join with others in wishing Messrs. Elliot Brothers even greater successes than they had yet had. (Applause.)

Mr. F. W. KILLIOTT briefly replied to the question of the firm. He said it was now some 25 years since they had started business in Sydney. They had always striven to do their best during that time, not only for themselves, but also for those connected with them in business. They had been successful in business, and he attributed the success more to the friendly feeling which Sydney people had exhibited towards them than to any special exertions on the part of the firm. Their success was also able to employ, for without the exertions of their employees they should not have succeeded as they had. They had erected new premises in order that they might carry on their business more conveniently, and supply the wants of Sydney with greater ease than they had hitherto done. Their business had increased so much that the premises they occupied at present were not large enough, and they were compelled to erect a new warehouse. He thanked them for the manner in which they had received

The toast, and he hoped that shortly they would see the large buildings being erected in their midst. In conclusion he proposed the health of the architects, Messrs. Rowe and Green.

The toast having been drunk, Mr. Rowe and Mr. Green replied. Mr. G. Elliott then proposed the health of the contractors, to which Messrs. White and Sims responded. The proceedings terminated with the toast of "The Press."

A WONDERFUL MARGIN.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Mr. Trevor Jones estimates the cost of bringing in the Nepean water at between £200,000 and £300,000. Alderman Dean says he will guarantee to bring it here in five weeks, and for £50,000. A wonderful margin.

Mr. Service says that the want of publicity is entirely due to the action of the New South Wales representatives—which is quite true. But that simply shows that the Conference, such as it was, was not a unit one for making a new Constitution, the principles of which required to be subsequently explained to any new Australasian Premiers who might be called to power.

Mr. Service lays stress on the fact that the general matter that might be dealt with by a Federal Council would not be any deduction from the powers of the State Legislatures, because it is outside their limits now. As respects some of it, this is true, but not, as respects the whole of it, because the limits of local legislation might be easily extended, and concerted legislation might deal with it. A good deal of more slowly it must be admitted, but for that very reason more satisfactorily. It is the slow, steady, and sure way of proceeding, to which Mr. Service evidently adheres.

tion, and as to local objections, why, they must be overridden. He evidently thinks it a good thing that the weight of federal authority should crush down local objections, and the sooner the weight is felt the better. Yet in a free country the best laws are those that fit the people, and the best way to find whether they fit the people is to let the people make them themselves. In each colony there is a local Legislature, and in all the larger colonies two Houses of Parliament. To these Parliaments, on Mr. SERRIC's scheme, small matters may still be usefully referred; but the large matters of common concern would be best dealt with by a Council of Thirteen.

All necessary precaution against the Council doing too much, or getting out of line with public opinion, is, he thinks, provided for by the rule that no new subject colonies," and that means a resolution passed in each House of Parliament. But in the first place, resolutions are not so elaborately discussed as bills are; and in the next place, it is one thing to send a matter up for discussion, and quite another thing to approve of the results of that discussion. Who knows how a question might be dealt with by the thirteen gentlemen? What guarantee is there that they would be thoroughly informed as to the detailed operations of the policy to be approved? Who knows what bargaining and log-rolling, what diplomatic alliances and circumventions, might be going on to secure a particular decision? What conceivable need is there at the present time that we should surrender our rights of legislation in this fashion? Common laws on common questions would be good if they were generally approved; but they would not be good if they

Mr. SERVICE says that if we wait for voluntary unity we may still wait indefinitely, as is proved by the fact that our Conferences have come to nothing. But they have often come to nothing from the fact that Victoria was trying to secure an unfair advantage, and in those cases they very properly came to naught. But if the Conferences had agreed upon conclusions obviously wise and equitable, their labours would not have been in vain. Mr. SERVICE's doctrine is that if we cannot agree voluntarily, we must be made to agree; that we must all put up with our power of standing out, and agree beforehand to accept the decision of the thirteen gentlemen, whatever that may be, and that only in that way can a truly united union be obtained.

colonies who found that they had been sacrificed at the Federal Council were kicking and protesting against the net in which they had been entangled, and were doing their very utmost to nullify the federal action? The intense desire for federation in Victoria arises from the wish to carry out certain lines of its own policy, and overlay Australia with them, and precisely in proportion as it succeeds in doing that will it provoke reaction and discord. And what would be the use of a Federal Union in which insurrectionary fervour was perpetually bubbling up? The proposed Federal Council is invested with no power whatever for enforcing its decisions. In America Congress governs because it has sole control of the army, the navy, and the federal revenue. But our Federal Council will not have at its disposal a single constable, nor a single shilling.

Council having met, and the local Parliament of any one of the colonies considering that its interests had been sold. It would immediately pass resolutions to that effect, and turn out the Ministry that sent the delegates there, and a new Ministry would come in pledged to undo the decision, and meanwhile to minimise its application to the very utmost. This sort of thing might happen every year, and a pretty sort of unity it would be to show to the world. There is a great and substantial unity amongst these colonies, and there are also many differences. Our true policy is to promote the unity as far as possible, and to let the differences wear themselves out. But to transfer the legislative power bit by bit to a Council of thirteen, instead of organising the existing unity, would simply make the discord more furious than ever. The bill that is now before the British

the state of the case, we ought at least have the satisfaction of knowing it, and be led to believe that there is no sacrifice all. Mr. Snaven goes into his long explanation because Mr. Storr was not present "the detailed and elaborate discussion at Convention," and therefore it is necessary let him know not only what was done, but why it was done. But what a curious confusion this is. Here is an immense and practically unrepeatable change in the Constitution of the colonies to be brought about, and the Prime Minister of one of the colonies, whose objections are being overruled, has to be persuaded by being tardily told what was done at the secret discussion. We ever a Constitution framed in such a fashion before by a people who pride themselves on their free self-government? The coming part of the situation is this, that Mr. Snaven

No one will think it strange that the Bishop of STRUMBY's plea for giving compensation to publicans has surprised, not to say grieved, the local-opinionists. From the standpoint of the latter such questions as the one in dispute do not admit of argument. The cause of the local-opinionists is the cause of the Most High, and those who oppose it, or have misgivings about anything in connection with it, aid and abet the Evil One! There can be no compromise, no middle ground. The local-opinionists are doing a good work, and those who do not see as they see are furthering a bad one. They do not say in so many words that they are the righteous, and that the rest of the world are the wicked, but so far as the liquor question goes they are just what the reputation amounts

Captain Brown, of the schooner Hawthorn, says that the Russian steamer supposed to have been sighted near Cape Jervis by Captain Morse last week, while crossing the passage in the mason boat, was his own vessel, the Hawthorn. Captain Brown says that he plainly saw the mission boat.

His Excellency the Governor held the usual official dinner to-night, to which 70 guests had been invited, and 60 were present.

No announcement has yet been made of any Birthday honours being conferred on any South Australian colonist.

The quotations for wheat and flour to-day were unaltered. Sugars were steady, and a line of 1000 mats of medium Mauritius whites were quoted at £24 10s. Small lots in bond of grain China whites fetched £24 10s, and some business was done in Queensland rates at prices not named.

TASMANIA.

HOBART, THURSDAY.

Steps are being taken by the Government to form a National Rifle Association, to include the Volunteers and others. The preliminary arrangements are already made, and a committee have been appointed to draw up a code of rules. On Saturday the Commandant will proceed to Launceston to obtain the co-operation of the Northern Volunteers and the public there.

Lady Robinson expressed herself as very much pleased with the scenery around Hobart.

There is already some speculation as to the coming session of Parliament, some of the prophets declaring that the Ministry will have rather troublous times, mainly on account of the reciprocity treaty.

COUNTRY NEWS.

(BY TELEGRAPH.)

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

Colonel Roberts and Captain Scher, R.N., visited the Newcastle fortifications to-day, and expressed themselves favourably as to their condition.

At the inquest on the body of Louis Hathaway, who was killed by being run over by a cart, a verdict of accidental death was returned, with a rider that the employment of leads of tender years as drivers should be put a stop to.

A miner named John Morrow, while working at Walla and yesterday, was struck by a falling prop, which caused internal injuries from which he has since died.

At a meeting of the Miners' Executive Committee yesterday, the returns for the Great Colliery were taken. The latest results show: For the week, 1722; against 1619; informal, 40. It was moved that "The Great Colliery give 14 days' notice on Saturday next in accordance with the resolutions passed and confirmed by the district." The motion was carried, and the men will therefore go on strike.

GRAFTON, THURSDAY.

The report of the special committee of the Grafton Borough Council appointed to confer with Mr. District Surveyor Donaldson, in regard to the proposed extension of land, so as to secure for the borough council, a site for a new gaol, recommends that the offer of a part of section 139 be accepted, but that the Government be asked to allow £24, which has been expended in clearing and fencing this reserve. The report was adopted.

At a meeting of the council held last evening it was decided to call applications for the office of clerk, works, rendered vacant by the resignation of Mr. J. W. Mackay, the standing orders of the council having been suspended to permit the moving of the resolution without notice. Alderman Beaton moved a resolution commending the action of Alderman Atwater in having recently placed the corporation cart in front of the council-chambers, and also that the motion should be entered on the record of the council. Several resolutions passed against the present action, suggesting that a notice should be let drop. There was a full attendance of 12 aldermen, and the motion was carried, seven voting for it.

There was an attendance of about 100 persons at the lecture delivered by Mr. Adam Davidson at the local school of Arts last night on the subject of "The Chemistry of Common Drugs in Nature." The lecture is one of a series arranged for by the Board of Technical Education, and a number of interesting experiments were shown by the lecturer. At the conclusion of the lecture several students gave in their names as willing to join the classes. These will be held in the School of Arts, the committee having provided a room, with lighting free, for the purpose.

TAMWORTH, THURSDAY.

A special general meeting of the shareholders in the Tamworth Gas Company was held here this evening. The purpose of enlarging the works, by the laying of 1000 feet of main, and assimilating the motive of voting in elections, or when any poll is demanded, to the system now in force in the Australian Mutual Provident Society. Motions with these objects in view were carried unanimously, and also a motion for increasing the directors' fees. There was a large attendance of shareholders. Mr. H. Hunt, J.P., chairman of directors, presiding. The above resolutions are to be confirmed at a special meeting to be held on June 12.

TARSE, THURSDAY.

Mr. Henry Wynter Platt was elected Mayor of Tarse Municipality this afternoon.

The District Court was commenced here this morning, and is still proceeding.

The Freeholders of the Scotch Constitution have purchased an allotment of ground in a central position, on which they intend erecting a hall shortly.

BLAYNEY, THURSDAY.

A moderate but appreciable attendance in the school of Arts yesterday evening to listen to a lecture delivered by the Rev. George Lane, of Sydney, on "The Life and Times of Dr. Adam Clarke." The chair was occupied by the Mayor of Blayney, and the proceeds of the lecture are to be devoted to the Home Mission Fund of the Wesleyan Church.

All signs of rain have cleared away, and matters are beginning to look very serious for the farmers and graziers.

GOLBURN, THURSDAY.

A man named Henry Fleming was arrested yesterday by the police, as he was suffering from diphtheria tremens brought on by excessive drinking. He was taken to the hospital, but he was medically treated, but at 8 o'clock this morning he died. An inquest was held to-day, when a verdict in accordance with the evidence was recorded.

COTTAUNDRA, THURSDAY.

The alignment of the streets of the town is now being carried out by Mr. M. Callum, of the Survey Staff.

The Borough Council are now fairly at work, and considerable improvements in the streets are being effected. It is thought to be nearly time that the Government built a good station in lieu of the miserable apology that at present exists.

WAGGA WAGGA, THURSDAY.

The Mayor of Wagga Wagga has received through Mr. G. C. Loughnan, M.L.A., an acceptance on the part of the Ministry of the invitation to a public banquet to be given in their honour here. Messrs.
